FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

(NAME OF SCHOOL) COMMITTED TO QUALITY INSTRUCTION THROUGH THE LAST DAY OF SCHOOL

SBDM Council Amends Instructional Policy to Specify Expectations

(Name of school) has always been committed to providing engaging instruction from the first day of school to the last. But in light of recent comments about school days being wasted following the state assessment window, the (Name of school) SBDM Council has taken steps to ensure students are learning, even on the last day of school.

During the (add date here) meeting, the council amended their instructional policy to include language that specifies the expectations for teaching from the first day of school through the last. Parents can expect their children to be involved in learning activities planned from next grade-level content or content that requires deeper understanding than time allows before the assessment window. Students could also be engaged in relevant and meaningful units that are of interest to them or even going on instructional field trips.

(Add a positive parent quote about this amendment here.)

The end of the school year at (Name of school) will be exciting, fun, and memorable for students. One thing is for sure, learning will continue until the very end.
